Teen Times

Well, little ones (big ones, too); just about all you're going to get this week is a lecture. As we've stated on numerous occasions, we're just a bit too aged to dash around checking on your various romances, and other things. All of our helpers seem to have gone east with the geese, or something. The only news we've gleaned at the moment has been from parents in casual conversations. A couple of girls called Wednesday offering items for Teen Times, and we were under the impression that we'd made it clear that, due to added pages and more advertising, all news for the column must be received by Monday afternoon at the very latest. So please get up off your derrieres, and get on the ball... or go back to reading the Sunday comic.

And one more time, we'll say that the younger set, even though many are in their early 20s, are included in this spot because lots of college friends read this bit and they are interested in local doings. You escape only through matrimony — what a way to go!

That doll Altona Trellis is now, as she puts it, "gaily employed at Mississippi Power Company."

Ladies night was observed when the Waveland Methodist Men's Club met Monday at Waveland Town Hall with 38 members and guests attending. Supper was served after brief business session.

Success of the club's Thanksgiving project was reported. Twenty-five baskets, each with a retail value of about $16, were distributed. Appreciation was expressed to the persons who assisted with the undertaking. Plans will be announced shortly for a different civic project for Christmas.

Latin America eyed by White
for Rotarians

Paul M. White, Jr., public relations director for Gulf National Bank, spoke on Geopolitical Footnotes—Latin America at the luncheon meeting Nov. 23 of the Bay St. Louis Rotary Club.

He blamed lack of a solid middle class and apathy of feudal vested interests for the dangerous economic and social climate which is making Communist inroads possible in at least six vital regions.

White criticized U.S. foreign aid agencies, including the Alliance for Progress, citing lack of control over money intended for public works and alleviation of suffering. In too many instances, he said, ultimate beneficiaries of U.S. aid funds are the ruling classes and the corrupt politicians they control.

A Bay St. Louis resident, he has spent many years in various Latin American countries in both government and private capacity. He made the trips to that continent in the last year and has written extensively about it.

Draft Board calls 18 for physicals

Eighteen local youths have been called for pre-induction physicals Dec. 20 by Hancock County Draft Board.

For the second month, none from here were called for induction. Word on the January draft call is not expected until Dec. 13. However, Col. James L. Davis, state selective service director, said the call has been reduced 43.5 per cent. This means Mississippi will furnish 151 men for induction into the armed forces instead of 267 as originally required by national headquarters.

The Department of Defense had called for 27,600 men for January, but the national call has been reduced to 15,400 men. Other than in Mississippi, this is the lowest call in the history of the draft.

Due for pre-induction physicals of Jackson Army Air Base Dec. 20 are: James G. Bunker, Ambrose J. Glendon, Steven C. Wynn, Ernest J. Linder, Raymond A. Schull, Curdie J. Deane, Joseph H. Mitchell, III, Paul G. Gentry, Jr., William J. Linder, Jr., B. G. Gentry, Jr., William R. Linder, Jr., Stanley B. Wynn, Jr., Charles R. McQueen, Richard D. Gentry, Raymond E. Piles, Nicholas G. Gentry, Donald D. Gentry and Donald M. Ray.

In addition, nine men from here have called in various branches of the service. James G. Bunker was in the Navy, William J. Linder, Jr., Malcolm K. Gentry, Norman W. Linder and Donald G. Gentry in the Army, Alton H. Gentry, Jr., in the Air Force, George E. Linder and Robert S. Gentry in the Naval Reserve and Robert J. Peterson in the Louisiana National Guard.

Mitchell and chums found safe in Sound
A Bay St. Louis man and his two companions, including one Saturday on a fishing trip, were found safe by the Coast Guard Monday.

Charles Mitchell, 38, 6 Chancellors Terrace, owner and operator of a 20-foot outboard motorboat, and Robert Nelson, 34, and David Gentry, 35, both of which were found in the Point of View, about 10 miles offshore from Pass Christian.

The trio had left Bayou Caddy Saturday morning to fish at Mitchell's Key in the waters of the Sound and when they failed to return Sunday afternoon Mrs. Mitchell contacted the Coast Guard which launched an air-sea search.

The fishermen were in good shape and said they were waiting for better weather before returning to the mainland. A Coast Guard official said winds had reached a velocity of 40 knots Sunday in the area.

All are employed by Beach Alarms at Mitchell. Mitchell is an engineer and has lived here with his family for the last five years.

We will be most happy to serve you. Call Ronnie Burns, 467-9001.

When you love your work, it shows.

And we love our work. So much that we wouldn't bear to stop with the slickest looking split grille car to give a Wide Track. (Or any other car, for that matter.)

We went ahead and made the windshield wipers disappear. The car not only looks cleaner, but the wipers are less subject to icing and freezing, too.

Then we got rid of the vent windows on all Grand Prix hardtops. We replaced them with puffy panoramas and a flow through ventilation system.

We even designed an other unique hood-mounted tachometer.

And our other new option: live stereo tape and stereo radio.

And of course, our handsome interior. You'll be keen to be treated.

All Pontiacs have the standard safety features, the inside a dual master cylinder brake system with warning light, outside rear view mirror, and GM's energy absorbing steering column.

Isn't it time you decided to see your Pontiac dealer? If you love our work the way we do, it's the least you can do.

Lynn Rose, Orleansian speak vows

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Rocco have announced the marriage of their daughter, Lynn Rose Rocco, to John Alexander Stevenson, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Stevenson of New Orleans.

The event took place Sunday afternoon at the St. Charles Catholic Church followed by a reception at the Stevenson home.

The couple repeated their vows later in the evening in the chapel of Hancock General Hospital to enable the bride's mother, who is ill there, to be present. Rev. Lamar Martin of Main Street Methodist Church officiated. Mrs. Pat Capodanno was matron of honor and Mr. Stevenson was best man for his son.

A small reception took place later at the Rocco residence in Bay Royale Apartments.

Mr. Rocco is a brief honyymoon at Grand Hotel, Point Clear, Ala., the couple will reside in New Orleans.

The bride is a graduate of Bay High School and Baptist Hospital School of Nursing. She is now on the Tulane University medical staff in the kidney transplant unit at Charity Hospital. During her high school days, she was a Deep Sea Rodeo princess representing the town of Waveland.

The groom was educated in New Orleans schools and at Tulane University. He is associated with Orleans Funeral Supply Co.

but fear the note may be displaced before we get around to it. So we'll just compromise by congratulating the new St. Clare's Holy Name Society of officers. To wit: Henry Davelle, president; Jimmy Ferry, first vice president; John Junler, second vice president (wait a minute, this is a charitable club, not a bank); Sterling Balaist, secretary; Jimmy Lagasse, treasurer, again, and Bud Francis, chaplain. . . we hope. . . forgot to write it down, and it's too blank late to call!

Romance of the railroad

This particular romance began at the tender age of five on a trip to Miami and ended abruptly on a similar jaunt some 17 years later. Memories of the first train ride are of polite, willing conductors, flagmen, porters, waiters; delicious food, crisp linens—the works. Wartime (circa early 1940s) vicissitudes, no doubt, accounted for some almost unbelievable unbearable experiences on the later Florida pilgrimage; but from that day until yesterday, railroads have been personally regarded with, shall we say—less than enthusiasm! That was until we boarded the Pan American (only a little over an hour late; at the Bay depot last Wednesday night.

All of a sudden the L&N at least, seems to have realized that they are transporting people. Not cattle (who used to get preferred treatment — they are not permitted to remain in cars for longer than 24 hours in a stretch, and we've been known to have waited that long in sidetrack, well almost, anyway.

And into the commercial

From the moment we put a foot on the small bench to enter the coach until we leapt down on a similar device in Nashville, Tenn. the whole atmosphere was just exactly as advertised on a transcontinental jet flight commercial lacking only free champagne — which isn't exactly appealing at 9 a.m. anyway. And, would you believe a delicious breakfast, graciously served with real orange juice, bacon, eggs, toast, jelly — endless hot coffee for only $1.30? This could go on and on — but best get around to news of the big holiday weekend.

Some details of the trip

This is just bound to be the wildest column to date, due to the fact the beginning was painfully hand written on that lovely train, continued the same fashion at the home of hospitable, (aunt) Sara and Mary Perkins; and ended upon our return from the hills and vales of Middle Tennessee. Also much held over from last week which will pop up here and there. So we'll just go whole hog and combine it, we hope, brief report of the visit and in this manner, work in sort of combined bread and butter notes.

Upon arrival at the archaic-Cathedral inspired depot, the afore mentioned aunts and a very pretty niece, seven year old Mary Lyons, were waiting to "taxi" us the 20 odd miles from Nashville to Franklin, where Thanksgiving dinner, an elaborate spread indeed, was served by little Mary's parents, Mario and Tom Lyons and enjoyed by those already named plus "mamma", (who would kill us if we ever used such an informal address in person.) Mrs. Tom Lyons.

Friday was a rush of visiting back and forth with "mamma", an arthritis sufferer who resides in the very comfortable and friendly Graystone Rest Home" grabbing moments for a little shopping, topped off with dinner, and the first husbandless gab fest in 20 years, with Ann (Mrs. Sam) Davidson and daughter Susan; Sam and Sam, Jr. being in Detroit on a business trip. Ann has been a very close friend since we were about seven or eight years old, and it's just as well our children weren't eavesdropping as we recalled harrowing escapades of past years. . . some of which our offspring would be murdered for merely contemplating.

Final dinner

Dinner Saturday, before hopping the train for the trip home, at Sara and Mary's was just out of this world. . . doubt that we'll be hungry for at least a week!

Back at home

Home at last—and as Garri (Mrs. Sam) Blanchard had insisted that at least one of her holiday houseguests would be awake when we hit the picturesque little station, we called and her sleepy voice gave away the fact that the others, Sam, Ruth and Matt Ballard were still snoozing away. . . however, she appeared fully dressed, made up, every hair in place, less than ten minutes after the phone ring. Then back to our happy little electric servants such as washers, dryers, stoves and the like, that are so helpful, but just can't seem to really free housewives, working ones anyway, for the luxurious leisure always promised in the upper left hand corner of the monthly statement!

This should no doubt be written as a capsule news item.

Youngest vet

We always just had a certain feeling that Ernest Carver just had to be famous for something. . . and sure enough, when

Hawks grounded as rebound bid fails

A tough, competitive quarter from Southeast Lauderdale out-lined Hancock North Central Saturday night to beat the Hawks, 56-54, in North Central's gym.

The Hawks just missed putting the contest into overtime when with four seconds to go, the score 56-54, Lloyd Anderson grabbed a rebound and passed to Guy Necaise who was in the open for a crisp shot but he couldn't hold on to the ball and the chance was lost.

The Hawks got off to a good start and led 14-9, at the end of the first period but could only score 10 points in the second and Lauderdale led 31-

24 at halftime. But the Hawks evened it up 45-45 at the end of the third quarter and went on to lead until the final minutes of the game.

Quarter scores:

The Hawkettes dropped the opener to the Lauderdale ladies, 33-24, with Glenda Faye scoring 14 points for the locals.

Storm warning tower to be dismantled

Small craft storm signal, flown for the past 70 years outside St. Stanislaus College, will no longer be displayed at that location, William L. Tilson, U.S. Weather Bureau, Mobile, said recently.

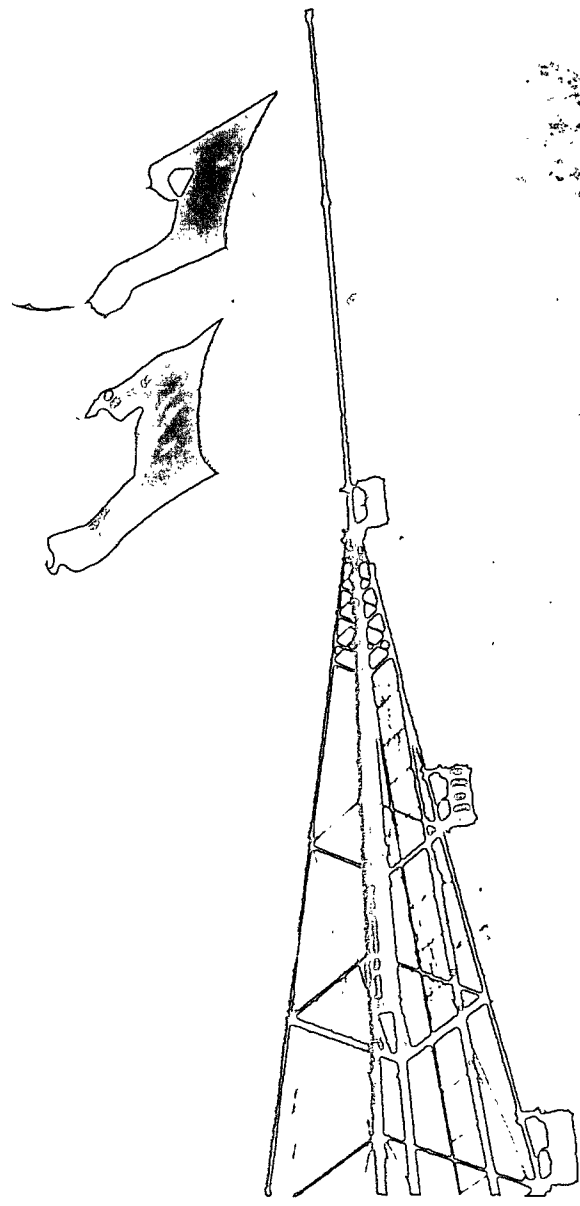

He cited the increased reliance on radio and television weather reports as the principal reason for stopping the service.

"Few small craft now rely on visual storm signals," he said.

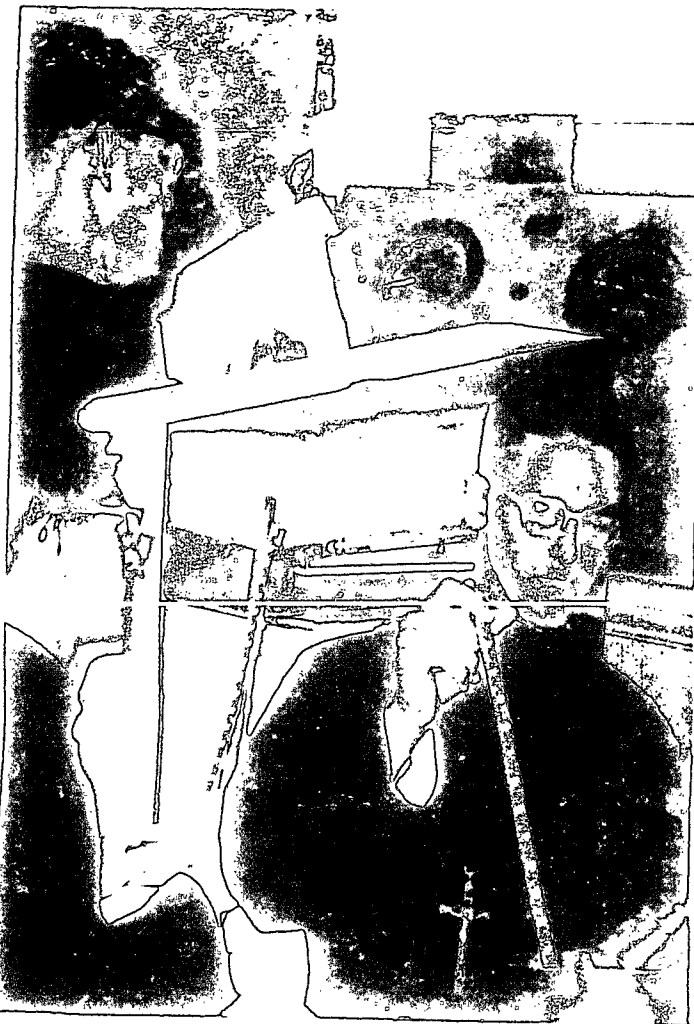

The college will retain its other weather instruments and continue to record velocity and direction of winds. The tower, slightly undermined by Hurricane Betsy, has been abandoned to the college and will probably be dismantled.

While in the city Tilson also conducted a survey to find suitable location for a tide variation recording gauge.

"We have not decided on the exact location for this new instrument but our findings will be made known as soon as possible," he said.

ST. HOIST Brother Robert, in charge of St. Stanislaus College weather reporting station, said the tower will be dismantled. Due to increased reliance on radio and television weather reports, reporting at this location has been discontinued, U.S. Weather Bureau, Mobile, said recently.

WEATHERWATCHING - As part of weather keeping chores Brother Robert checks wind velocity and direction, top, reads temperatures and humidity, lower left, and measures rainfall.

White Cross church to get face lifting

Repairs and renovations to Rocky Hill church are now underway, according to Rev. Paul Keil, assistant pastor, Annunciation Church, Kilauea.

Rev. Keil said the building, used for Sunday Mass and Sunday school, has been damaged in places while the staves and general interior is in severe need of repair.

He said a work force consisting of L.J. Breary, Lee Cuevas, Royce Sayou and Albert Tibia has been working on the building and will soon be starting on the inside work.

A new altar of walnut stain wood is planned as is red carpeting in the sanctuary and aisle and American paneling. No completion date has been set for the improvements.
